Dear Mardi Gras Guests and Friends of Methodist Hospital:

Welcome to the 25th Celebration of MARDI GRAS FOOD FEST! Thank you for being here tonight to support Methodist Hospital.

An evening like this doesn't happen without the hard work of dedicated volunteers and we first want to recognize the members of the Mardi Gras Food Fest 2020 committee for creating an outstanding event. We're also grateful to all the restaurants, businesses, and individuals who contributed the wonderful food, beverages, and auction items that have made this a night to remember.

Of course it wouldn't be Mardi Gras without "royalty" and we are proud to recognize Dr. Jacob Fakoory as this year's King. We are thrilled to honor such a deserving individual who has dedicated 30 years of his career to the treatment of thousands of patients in the Hollfelder Emergency Care Center at Methodist Hospital. Please join us in congratulating him tonight. You'll see him draped in the royal cape and wearing the prestigious crown as he leads the parade!

We are also especially grateful to all the sponsors who supported this festive fundraiser which benefits the purchase of a CT scanner to be located in the Hollfelder Emergency Care Center here at Methodist Hospital. Special thanks to the six "Carnivale" Sponsors; Arcadia Hospitalist Medical Group, City of Hope, Healthcare Partners, Huntington Hill Imaging Centers, Kindred Hospital Rehabilitation Services, Mike and Patty Nijjar and the Roger and Lilah Stangeland Foundation for their generosity.

We hope you have a wonderful time tonight and that you take pleasure in the knowledge that your support helps make the outstanding care we provide possible. Thanks again and laissez les bons temps rouler!

MARDI GRAS 2020 HONORS DR. JACOB FAKOORY

Though he may not want the fanfare or attention, emergency medicine specialist Jacob Fakoory, MD, is an extremely well-known person in our community.

Dr. Fakoory took a unique path to becoming an Emergency Department physician at Methodist Hospital. He was born in Trinidad and received his medical training at Dalhousie Medical School in Halifax, Nova Scotia in the early 1970s. He worked at a small hospital in Northern Maine right out of school doing everything including emergency medicine, cardiac care, and even delivering babies.

“Back then you did a little bit of everything, but I found Emergency Medicine to be a little more stimulating,” Dr. Fakoory says. “I like the challenge. No two days are the same. It keeps you on your toes. You have to be ready for whatever comes through the door.”

He met his wife Genevieve in Maine who was an emergency department nurse and they married in 1977. Tired of the cold weather, they moved to California shortly thereafter. The couple raised three daughters all of whom work in health care. One is an ED physician, another works in health care management, and another is a speech pathologist.

During his three decades with Methodist Hospital, Dr. Fakoory has treated more than 100,000 patients – enough to more than fill the Rose Bowl. In fact, it’s equal to the total number of patients treated in the ED over two full years. During his tenure at Methodist Hospital, which includes serving as Medical Director since 2006, Dr. Fakoory has seen many changes.

“We’ve grown multiple programs over the years and gained a designation as a heart attack (or STEMI) receiving center as well as our certification as a comprehensive stroke center,” Dr. Fakoory says. “These recognitions were joint efforts between the Emergency Department team, medical staff and the hospital service lines to get the doctors and nurses to work together to better coordinate the care delivered to our patients. The result is improved outcomes and a better quality of life for our patients.”

About 70% of all hospital admissions each year come through the Emergency Department. ED physicians each treat at least 20 patients per day during their 10 hour shifts.

“The ED doctors, nurses and secretaries are a true team,” Dr. Fakoory says. “Caring for the emergency patients is definitely a joint effort and we rely on one another. We need our nurses to help bring us up to date on the patients because as doctors we’re busy caring for multiple patients coming into the hospital at the same time. The nurses are our backbone in the ED.”

Among the biggest changes he’s seen during his career revolves around technology. “We have so much more technology now which helps with diagnosing patients,” Dr. Fakoory says. “We also have more focus on certain symptoms and aspects of care and diagnosis because the quicker you get certain diagnostic tests and treatments started on patients, the better the outcome. Everything is time sensitive.”

“Time can mean loss of heart muscle or loss of brain cells,” he says. “So we worked hard to get everyone on board and working together so we could focus on the patient and getting things done as soon as possible so the patient outcome is better.”

“WHEN I WAS FIRST ASKED IF I WANTED TO BE THE KING OF MARDI GRAS, I JUST SAID THAT I’M NOT INTO THAT SORT OF THING. IT’S JUST NOT ME, BUT IF BEING THE KING OF MARDI GRAS BENEFITS THE ED PROGRAM, THEN I’M ALL FOR IT.”

-JACOB FAKOORY, MD.

“The designation of Methodist Hospital as a comprehensive stroke center is a huge accomplishment,” he says. “I may be biased but our standards and care are just as good as the big centers. Plus it’s such a huge benefit to people that if you’re having a stroke, we have the steps in place to quickly assess and treat patients giving them an excellent chance at getting back to a normal life.”

Along these lines of getting needed care to the patient as soon as possible, the hospital is raising funds to purchase a CT Scanner to be located in the ED. A computed tomography scan, or CT scan, is a test that is used to look for a problem by using powerful X-rays to create detailed pictures of the inside of your body. Currently, patients who arrive in at the ED and need a CT scan are transported to the hospital Radiology Department on the second floor.

“In certain instances, we need a CT scan in order to better diagnose stroke and heart patients,” Dr. Fakoory says. “Everything is time sensitive. Currently, we transport the patient to the CT Scanner on the hospital second floor, complete the scan, then bring the patient back down to the ED. By installing a new CT Scanner in the ED, we will save up to 20 minutes when diagnosing patients, enabling us to treat patients even faster.”

Dr. Fakoory is planning to retire this year, but he’s certainly enjoyed his time at Methodist Hospital and attending social events like Mardi Gras.

“What I like the most about Mardi Gras is you get to see your colleagues in a social environment, and you get to see members of the community who you’ve cared for in the past,” Dr. Fakoory says. “It’s so nice to be able to help someone get better who is critically ill, and then years later reconnect with the patient and the family who are so grateful. It’s tremendously satisfying.”

Mardi Gras Proceeds Will Greatly Benefit Emergency Department Patients

Purchasing New CT Scanner Dedicated to the Department Will Enable Staff To Diagnose and Treat Patients Even Faster

Proceeds from the 25th annual Mardi Gras Food Fest celebration will be used for the purchase of a CT Scanner dedicated to serving patients in the Methodist Hospital Emergency Department, which will enable hospital staff to treat heart and stroke patients even faster.

“Everything in an emergency situation is time sensitive,” says Jacob Fakoory, MD, Medical Director of the Emergency Department and this year’s Mardi Gras King. “With a CT Scanner dedicated to our ED, we will save up to 30 minutes when diagnosing patients, enabling us to treat patients even faster.”

A computed tomography scan, better known as a CT scan, is a diagnostic test using powerful X-rays to create detailed pictures of the inside the body and can be especially helpful with diagnosing stroke and heart patients in emergency situations.

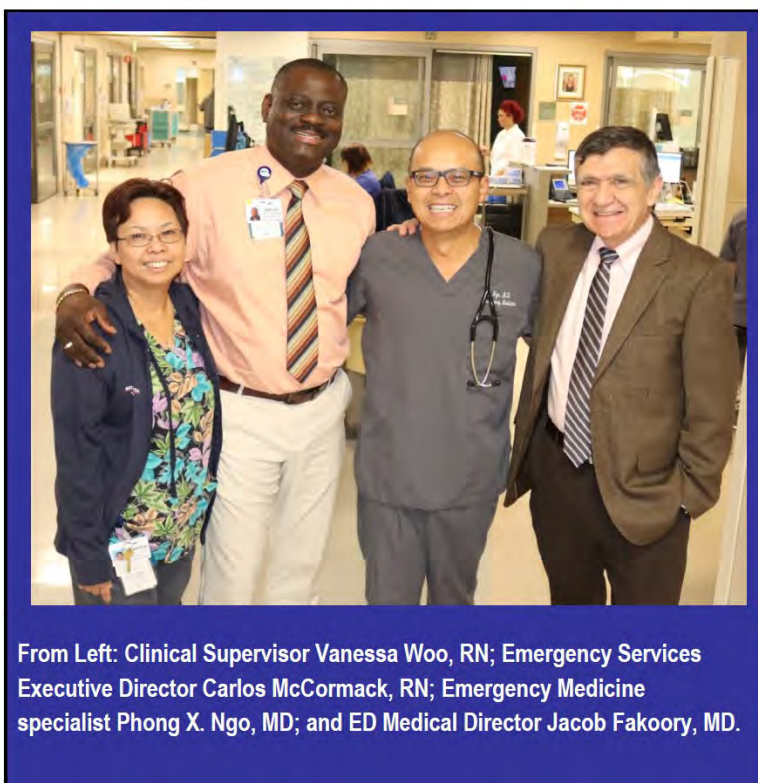

“Our standards and care are just as good as the larger stroke centers,” Dr. Fakoory says. Methodist Hospital holds a Comprehensive Stroke Center Certification from independent rating agency DNV GL and is designated by Los Angeles County Emergency Medical Services as one of only 18 comprehensive stroke centers serving the region. The hospital is also designated as a heart attack (STEMI) receiving center.

“Our designation as a comprehensive stroke center in 2018 is a huge accomplishment,” he says. “For people who come to us suffering a stroke, it’s a tremendous benefit for a comprehensive stroke center like ours to have the steps in place to quickly assess and treat patients. This gives patients an excellent chance at getting back to a normal life.”

Methodist Hospital has earned numerous awards for the high quality, safe care provided to patients over the years, especially with regard to heart and stroke services.

“Our ability to provide state-of-the-art care has earned Methodist Hospital major recognition from the American Heart Association and the American Stroke Association as a center of excellence for both cardiac care and stroke care multiple times during the past decade,” says Hospital President and CEO Dan Ausman. “We extend sincere thanks and appreciation to all of our Mardi Gras attendees and donors for supporting our hospital. We also share our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our doctors, nurses and staff for their dedication to providing high quality, compassionate care to our patients every day.”

New 320 Slice CT Scanner Speeds Diagnosis and Treatment of Patients

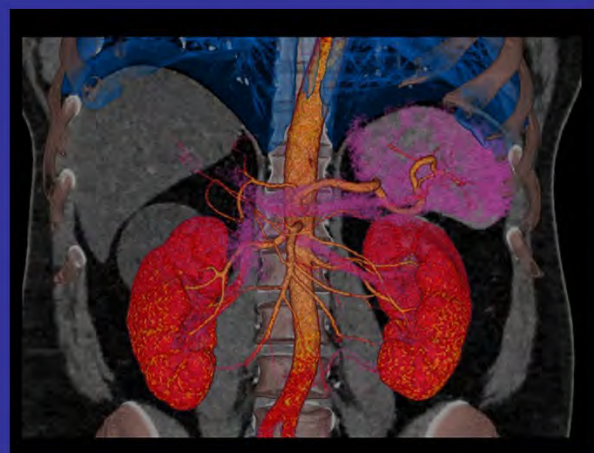

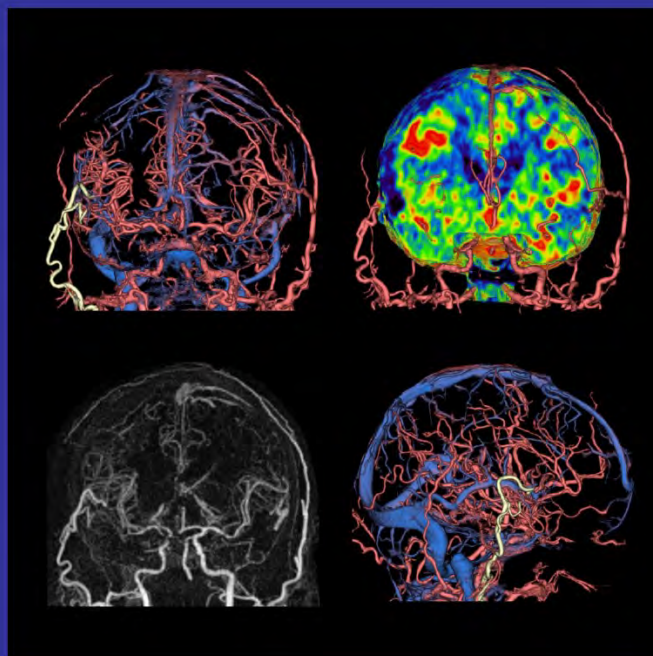

With funds raised at this year's Mardi Gras Food Fest, Methodist Hospital plans to purchase a 320 slice CT scanner. The addition of a CT Scanner based in the hospital Emergency Department will save as much as 30 minutes with diagnosing patients and provide the ability to treat our patients even faster.

The new scanner for the hospital will feature:

- Integrated, fast, anatomically optimized 3D images of the body
- Improved high contrast spatial resolution
- Natural looking image quality with targeted anatomical modelling
- Radiation dose reduction

Hospital staff carefully prepare a patient about to undergo a CT scan, which is typically painless and usually takes only a short time to complete.

Dynamic, multilayered 3D images created by the 320-slice CT scanner can offer a variety of angles and images of the body, including the brain (left) and abdomen (above), allowing physicians to provide a quicker diagnosis and more precise treatment plan for patients.

Dear Mr. Driebe and Members of the Methodist Hospital Foundation:

I would like to offer my warm regards as you gather for the Methodist Hospital Foundation's 25th annual Mardi Gras Food Fest.

For more than a century, the Foundation has generously supported Methodist Hospital and its programs, providing the hospital with many valuable resources. Proceeds from this year's event will provide for the purchase of a CT scanner for the hospital's Hollfelder Emergency Care Center.

I would like to congratulate tonight's honoree and Methodist Hospital's Medical Director since 2006, Dr. Jacob Fakoory. In his thirty-year tenure, Dr. Fakoory has treated more than 100,000 patients, and spearheaded efforts to grow numerous programs at the hospital, including its designation as a comprehensive stroke center and a STEMI (ST-elevation myocardial infarction) receiving center to quickly treat heart attack patients. In addition, Dr. Fakoory and his wife, Genevieve, have been substantial supporters of the hospital for many years, and I commend them for their dedicated service to the Methodist Hospital community.

Best wishes for a successful event and keep up the great work!

Sincerely,

ADAM B. SCHIFF
